Institute of American Indian Arts (IAIA) Museum & Native Gallery Tour

Located in downtown Santa Fe, the Institute of American Indian Arts (IAIA) Museum is dedicated solely to advancing the discourse, knowledge and understanding of contemporary Native arts. Founded in 1971, the Museum's exhibitions, publications and educational programs challenge pre-conceived notions of both contemporary and Native art. IAIA Museum is home to the largest collection of contemporary Native art in the world and the IAIA Museum's store is a premiere shopping destination offering the finest selection of contemporary Native arts and gifts of emerging and established artists.

A large portion of Santa Fe's population is comprised of artists. Many are IAIA alumni who have made Santa Fe their home. Native American arts are deeply rooted in the region's history. Artists from the pueblos and tribes of New Mexico produce highly prized works that reflect their ancestor's traditions and also represent contemporary innovations.

Many Pueblo artists continue to work with the same traditions and tools as their ancestors, producing prized pieces exhibited in Santa Fe museums and sold in Santa Fe galleries and at the annual Santa Fe Indian Market. Others embrace a contemporary approach, blending time-honored techniques with cutting-edge media, perhaps, or infusing old traditions with new vision. However they're made, each piece reflects the vibrant history and innate talents of New Mexico's Native American artists.
