ABOUT AMAZON WATCH: Founded in 1996, Amazon Watch works to protect the rainforests of the Amazon basin and support the region's indigenous peoples as their lands, cultures and wellbeing are increasingly threatened by industrial activity. In the U.S., we use media, investor, and public pressure to reform the environmental and social practices of financial institutions and oil companies operating in the Amazon. In the Amazon, we work in partnership with local communities to secure and protect their territories while strengthening their capacity to document and publicize human rights and environmental abuses and to advocate for their own rights.
